

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a method and apparatus of monitoring and controlling the degree of fusion of a coating applied to a substrate. Fusion is determined by the measured optical distortions of laser beam reflected from the surface of the coated substrate. Optical distortion may be measured in the form of wavefront or intensity distortions.

5 Typically, poor fusion is associated with greater distortion values.

BEST AVAILABLE COPY